PUBLIC GREEN

A wise idea?

Verver Export has had a lot of online contact with sellers and customers since the beginning of the coronavirus pandemic. We are happy that we could keep in close contact through our discussions, small market research projects, surveys, webinars and much more.

Following these socially distanced interactions, we have decided to reduce our 'paper mountain' to two catalogues, each published once every two years. The first example of combined products and concepts can be found in this new summer catalogue 2022-2023. Was this the right decision? Only time will tell. What we do know is that this reference book will provide you with everything you need to plan your planting in the spring.

Once again, we have added a few more innovations to our individual varieties range, especially in our wide selection of dahlias. The number of organically grown dahlias, Verver Export's own cultivars, has also increased significantly. With three new summer tram concepts and the new perennial concept Tram Prairie, we want to show you that we have not been sitting still at Verver Export. We are as eager as ever to share the future of public green space with you! Enjoy watching & reading,

Tijmen Verver

Nature in the city: the triple zone approach

When developing new combinations and product concepts, Verver Export takes account of the 'triple zone approach' for nature in the city. Account is thereby taken of the distinctive characteristics of the urban environment when using bulbs, annuals and perennials for public planting.

Let's list them for you again:

1. The core zone

In the core zone, the environment for plants and animals is almost entirely shaped by humans. It has its own (micro-)climate, the water system is usually artificial, and the original substrate has often disappeared. For Verver Export this is the space where concepts are used that involve display planting.

2. The marginal zone

In the marginal zone the natural environment for plants and animals is still largely intact (often with the exception of the soil structure). However, human activities mean that most of the original plants and animals have virtually disappeared. There is quite a lot of public green space, but this tends to be urban types adapted to the built environment. Verver Export develops concepts and applications for this zone that fit with a functional planting approach.

3. The transitional zone

In the transitional zone the environment for plants and animals is usually intact, including the original soil. There is only scattered development. The transitional zone can be very species-rich; it forms the boundary region and the contact zone between the city and the surrounding landscape. For this zone, Verver Export recommends more natural planting with bulbs for naturalising and perennial planting planted mechanically in verges.

Taking account of the nature of a particular zone when designing and managing plantings results in variation in the planting and reinforces the identity of the various parts of the urban area. A useful assessment can be made by differentiating between three aspects: aesthetic quality, ecological quality and the usage value of the planting.

At Verver Export we are keen to help you think around this theme so that the right plant/concept ends up in the right place!

Attractive greenery!

With our Summer Trams and Tram Vivas you can conjure up the most beautiful, colourful borders, roundabouts and parks.

Functional greenery!

More space to play with concepts such as Tram Vivas, flower meadows with lilies and seeds or butterfly-friendly plantings.

Natural greenery!

Often for public spaces that can be less frequently maintained, so perfectly suited to Tram Robuste perennial concepts and machine-planted lilies with flower seeds.

BIO DAH LIAS

These flower bulbs are grown following the principle: grown in harmony with the environment, nature and landscape and the wellbeing of animals, with no artificial fertilisers and pesticides.

In this catalogue, you'll find all the single-flowered dahlias that provide food for bees and butterflies in public green spaces.

Fun fact

Late summer snack!

Butterflies and (wild) bees need nectar from flowers, but they also need pollen. Nectar and pollen contain the proteins they need to make their eggs and feed their larvae.

A single-flowered Dahlia produces lots of flowers until late in the summer. And that's great because many plants have stopped flowering by then. This leaves something for the butterflies and bees to snack on.

Dahlias are the biggest stars in the range of summer-flowering bulbs at Verver Export. You can choose from more than 200 different cultivars.

And we are also delighted to offer you beautiful treasures from the rest of the summer-flowering range. Be inspired!

The Mingus series

Philip Mingus (USA) took over commercial cultivation and breeding from his father, and he shared his father's passion for Dahlias. He retired in 1983 to continue his father's work. This resulted in 84 cultivars in the MINGUS Dahlia series.

The Mingus Dahlias are sold all over the world and are recognisable by their name. He named them after everyone in his circle of family and friends as well as other people who were dear to him. They are always recognisable by the Mingus name. Philip Mingus died in 2018.

Verver Export introduction

A flower bulb can be officially named after assessing whether the cultivar is unique in its appearance and/or its characteristics. Depending on the bulb type, registration takes place centrally somewhere in the world.

On Saturday 29 September 2018, Verver Export christened a Dahlia from breeder Peter Koomen (Anna Paulowna, NL) 'Princess Erika'. Princess Erika is a French singer and actress of Cameroonian descent. She is best known for her reggae songs "Trop de bla-bla" or "Faut qu'i'travaille".

Propagation

From seed to tuber

As with other flowers and plants, the breeder makes a conscious decision to cross two cultivars with each other. The species are crossed in the summer, and breeders make sure that no spontaneous, natural crossing can occur. The seeds are harvested in the autumn and sown in early spring. From these seeds, a beautiful plant with a tuber grows in one season. The flowers are evaluated and, if approved, the tubers are harvested.

The tubers are placed in a moist, warm place early in the spring. The tuber quickly forms many new growth shoots. These are cut off to become the cuttings for the new season. After producing shoots and hardening, they are placed in the ground in May/June and go on to grow from cuttings to large tubers in one season. In November, the tubers are harvested and delivered to Verver Export.

World traveller!

Lilies are not only diverse in colour, shape and size but also in their origins. In the wild, they can be found in Korea, Japan and parts of Siberia, as well as near to the equator in India. In Europe, the lily is native to the Caucasus, the Balkans, Greece, Poland, the Alps and the Pyrenees. It is also found in the wild in most US states, with the exception of the southwestern part of the United States. You can certainly call the lily a world traveller!

By crossing with the wild species, beautiful new cultivars are created which are easy to propagate and have the natural 'look'.

Fun fact

A long history!

Anemone coronaria is a plant from the ranunculus family (Ranunculaceae). The plant is native to the Mediterranean region. In its area of origin, it is an herbaceous perennial that grows to a height of 20-40 cm (and sometimes up to 60 cm). It has a rosette of a few leaves at its base. Each leaf is divided in three and deeply lobed. The flowers grow on a single stem with a whorl of small leaves just below the flower. The flower is 3-8 cm wide and has five to eight red, white, pink, purple or blue petal-like sepals. The red anemone is most common on the Batha (Morocco), the purple ones in Galilee (Israel) and Esdralon (Israel) and the white ones in the hills of Tiberias (Israel). The colour is probably determined by the type of soil.

After flowering in the dry summer, it goes dormant, and the tuber can shrivel up until it looks like a rock-hard, wrinkly piece of wood. As soon as there is water again, it absorbs it like a sponge and becomes three times its size. It then starts to grow and flower again.

The Anemone coronaria has been a popular cut flower since time immemorial; this colourful flower has been mentioned since ancient times.

Connection & variation increases biodiversity

Connection and variation are two central themes in nature-inclusive building, design and layout of residential areas. Varied inner city green spaces that are connected to the countryside or other green hotspots around the city have greater biodiversity.

Variation brings balance

Ribbon-shaped parks and hedges and tree-lined avenue can connect the various parks, rural areas and public gardens. These connections can be specially constructed, but existing elements such as waterways with natural banks, railway embankments, dikes and widened verges can also be used. Animals are not the only ones to use these connections, they also have added value for residents.

🌿 From rough grass to verges with flowering grass

A strip of flowering grass added to a section of grass provides a useful feeding area for bees. All kinds of other insects and small vertebrates also benefit from the flowery, slightly wilder strips. A different mowing method used for the flowery strip also reduces mortality among the fauna when mowing. The flowery strip creates a colourful display from early spring to late summer.

🌿 Useful green space

Hedges, shrubs and other perennials provide greenery all year round as well as food and shelter for birds and bats. These green elements are reflected in every plan and can easily be used to make the street, district, neighbourhood or city nature inclusive. They are also a good base for connecting green spaces.

🌿 Idyll

A variety of communal facilities can be created in and around houses or buildings, such as the Idyll: a flower-filled meadow for bees, butterflies and people. Idyll is a flower meadow designed for bees and butterflies (and people). These are larger areas from 0.5-2 hectares, sown with local and native plant species that are beneficial for bees and butterflies. Idylls are usually freely accessible.

Variation minimises problems

A lack of variation can upset the balance of the landscape. This gives some species the chance to thrive while others do not. This is often accompanied by problems from wasps and oak processionary caterpillars. The more variation in verges, neighbourhoods, parks and nature reserves, the more resilience there is.

Legend

-  (larger) park / nature reserve = eat & reproduce/breeding
-  small islands with green ('step stones') = eating & resting, sometimes breeding
-  green corridor / green connections = room to move between different types of greenery

Flower bulbs for insects!!

Hand out flower bulbs for pollinators among your citizens with our Box Bee Wise!

A good way to contribute to the beautification of your environment and contribute to the development of natural areas.

The pollinators

Bulbs that bloom throughout the summer provide a host of flowers for foraging insects.

A pollinator is an animal that carries pollen between flowers as it travels around. The number and diversity of pollinators strongly influences plant diversity and vice versa, and the loss of diversity among pollinators can threaten the sustainability of plant communities.

Use a sticker to include your message or logo on the box.

SUMMER TRAMS

A wide range of ready-to-use bedding plants with dynamic growth and flowering. The planting will continue to amaze you and local residents all summer long.

Combinations of summer-flowering bulbs, supplied in pots, with annual plants. Available in the most fantastic colour combinations.

Ready-made plantings
for colourful city centres and traffic-calming borders.

Our "turnkey" summer beds: Immediate result and the whole summer over beautiful blooms!

A quick preparation is crucial!

The plants for the Summer Trams are supplied by various producers in Heerhugowaard, the Netherlands. The wooden transport racks are assembled, the plants are sorted by Tram and placed in trays and then placed by order on the shelves. All orders are loaded on Sundays or Mondays, so they can be delivered as quickly as possible.

The order picking takes place in the greenhouses of Verver Export, so that the plants remain in the dark for only a short time during transport. The plants should be watered immediately after arrival - we do not water them too much before the transport to avoid Botrytis.

Tips

- The best result is achieved by sticking to the provided planting plan.
- First place the pots in the desired places and then plant the plants and flower bulbs. This allows you to make changes if needed.
- Remove the weeds after planting, especially in the first period of time.
- After 4 to 6 weeks, the flower beds are fully developed; then weeds will stop growing.
- Fertilize with fertilizer in mid-July to achieve a long flowering period.
- Remove the withered flowers from the Dahlias about every three weeks. So the plant will bloom until the autumn.

Notes on planting

1. With our Summer Trams you can easily achieve a beautiful summer bloom.
2. The ready-to-plant Trams are delivered driven in a pot.
3. Your individual planting plan is included in the delivery.
4. With design concept for a complete flower bed of a certain size.
5. Delivery from KW 20.

Logistical top sport!

Esli tells about the Summer Trams: During the Summer Tram season, we almost run high-performance sports. Within a short period, we need to put together different concepts, prepare and deliver orders.

Green City Accord

Clean and healthy cities for Europe

The Green Cities Accord is an initiative of the European Commission to mobilise European mayors who are committed to safeguarding the natural environment. It aims to improve the quality of life for all Europeans and accelerate the implementation of relevant EU environmental legislation at local level.

By joining the accord, cities commit to step up their efforts in five areas by 2030:

1. Air: significantly improve air quality by moving towards compliance with the WHO air quality guidelines and ending exceedances of EU air quality standards as soon as possible.
2. Water: making significant progress to improve the quality of water bodies and increase efficiency of water use.
3. Nature and biodiversity: make significant progress in conserving and enhancing urban biodiversity, including by increasing the size and quality of urban green areas, and halting the loss and regeneration of urban ecosystems.
4. Circular economy and waste: make progress towards the circular economy by significantly improving municipal waste management, significantly reducing waste generation and landfill, and substantially increasing reuse, repair and recycling.
5. Noise pollution: significantly reduce noise pollution in cities and move closer to WHO recommended levels.

The Green Cities Agreement will also ensure coherence with other EU initiatives and support the implementation of the European Green Deal and the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

The agreement for the public green managers

There is a lot to be done before 2030, especially for you as a green manager. There are some practical issues to consider in the context of the nature and biodiversity.

- The right plant in the right place
- Extending the flowering period of plantings
- More biodiversity – vary with different flower bulbs, plants, shrubs and trees
- Green roofs on public buildings
- Green Infrastructure - connect green elements

We are happy to work with you to achieve your goals.
